

Conceptual Structures in Lexical Databases

John Doe
Some University
New York, USA
doe@example.com

Mary Smith
University of Somewhere
London, UK
mary@example.org

Abstract

This abstract describes briefly what this document is about. This abstract describes briefly what this document is about. This abstract describes briefly what this document is about.

1 Introduction

Text of the introduction. Text of the introduction. Text of the introduction. Text of the introduction. Text of the introduction. Text of the introduction.

Second paragraph of text. Second paragraph of text. Second paragraph of text. Second paragraph of text.

1.1 This is a Subsection

This is some text. This is some text. This is some text. This is some text.

1.1.1 This is a Subsubsection Header

This is some text. This is some text. This is some text. This is some text.

Paragraph header. This paragraph has a header.

1.2 General Instructions

Figures should be cited as Figure 1. They will be printed in black and white in the printed volume. Sections should be referred to as Section 2, etc. In the text, references can be cited using APA citation style (Smith, 1999) or IEEE style [1]. Either format is acceptable, but should be applied consistently throughout the text. The list of references at the end of the paper should be sorted alphabetically. The paper should have a running title and the author's names in the header. The page number should be centered in the footer.

Figure 1: An example of a figure

References

- [1] Ganter, Bernhard, & Wille, Rudolf (1999). Formal Concept Analysis. Mathematical Foundations. Berlin-Heidelberg-New York: Springer.
- [2] Sowa, John (1984). Conceptual Structures: Information Processing in Mind and Machine. Addison-Wesley.